QUEZON City—Every person has a college struggle story: the long commute or the terror professors, but ANCOP alumnus Fidel Carlos seemed to have it tough twice over, maybe because success would be doubly sweet.

In a recent interview, he shared about his family getting financially and emotionally hit by his father’s hospitalization abroad.

His father eventually had to return to the Philippines. The uncertainty and sudden shift in the family’s fortunes were too abrupt.

“We struggled to find a good school, navigate life, and just simply find means to survive till the next day. I didn’t even want to continue studying any more because I was under the impression that we couldn’t afford college,” Fidel explained.

There seemed to be a glimmer of hope when he passed the competitive Polytechnic University of the Philippines entrance test...

Message from the Chairman

Let us welcome our newsletter for the first quarter of 2026.

There are so many things we need to share to you, dear Ka-ANCOP. We have been blessed in 2025 in our work with the poor, now called “Heart for the Poor”, for ANCOP is not just about raising funds but about cultivating hearts to love as our Lord Jesus loves.

Your ANCOP family would like to thank you...
